£2.9M FOR HOMES

By
Olaide Oyekanmi

More than 1,000 homes across Hackney are to be renovated to increase insulation – reducing energy bills and cutting carbon emissions.

The borough has been awarded £2.9million following a successful bid from Hackney Homes, which manages Council housing in Hackney, with help from London Energy Efficiency Ltd.

The Homes and Communities Agency, which funds housing and regeneration across the UK, runs the Social Housing Energy Saving Programme (SHESP), which aims to help social landlords insulate hard-to-treat cavity walls.

“The funding will go a long way to improving insulation in harder to treat cavity walls”

The filling of these walls would not normally have been covered by the Decent Homes programme, which aims to bring all housing up to a set Government standard.

The work will be completed by existing Decent Homes contractors and spread out over the next two years. Cllr Karen Alcock, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, said: “This is a welcome boost to Hackney’s Decent Homes programme.

“The funding will go a long way to improving insulation in our harder to treat cavity walls and give our tenants not only better insulated homes, but homes that are cheaper to heat.”

Hackney Homes’ bid is one of the 46 sharing a fund of up to £84m as part of SHESP, which was announced in the national Government budget earlier this year.

The initiative forms part of the Government’s Housing Stimulus Package, which is designed to boost the housing market.

Message from the Mayor

Shaping our community

AS regular readers of this column will know, I have been increasingly concerned over recent years by the rise in the number of betting shops in certain areas of the borough, and angered by the fact that we can't act on residents' concerns because local councils don't have the legal powers to stop more betting shops opening on our high streets.

Everyone has the right to a flutter on the Grand National if that's their wish, but it is a sad reality that the high concentrations of betting shops in particular areas are linked to problem gambling, and can become magnets for anti-social behaviour.

In these difficult times we need to do everything we can to protect the shops on our high streets that serve the essential day-to-day needs of the local community, including being able to reject those that take millions of pounds out of communities and put nothing back.

We believe that decisions about the shape of our community should be taken by local people and that is why the Council is using the new Sustainable Communities Act to ask the Government to give us the power to act on the concerns of local residents and refuse permission for new betting shops to open, deciding together when enough is enough.

Didn't Idowu well?

By Nick Rutherford

HACKNEY'S own Phillips Idowu is celebrating after winning a gold medal in the men's triple jump at the World Athletics Championships in Berlin.

The 30-year-old, who grew up in the borough and often visits family still living here, was disappointed when he 'only' took silver at the Beijing Olympics last year – missing out to Portugal's Nelson Evora by just five centimetres.

But the tables were turned on 18 August when Idowu produced the biggest jump in the world this year – a personal best of 17.73m – and stopped defending champion Evora in his tracks.

When asked on BBC Radio Four the next day how this compared to last year's disappointment, he said winning gold in Berlin 'made up for it'.

He said: "It has been a

I always believed I could perform a lot better than I had been doing, and it's finally come to pass long time coming. It's a great feeling. I always believed I could perform a lot better than I had been doing, and it's finally come to pass.

"It's not often you get to pick up a global title. This is my first one outdoors – I've had one indoors."

And he still has his sights on Olympic triumph when the Games come to his home patch in 2012.

He told The Guardian newspaper: "I still have a dream of being Olympic champion. It's a long way away.

"I've got another couple of years and I've still got to defend this title. I've also got to defend my world indoor title next year."

Hackney 2012 Youth Ambassadors Gabrielle Boateng and Andre Dias with Great Britain and Chicago Bulls basketball player Luol Deng

By
Emma Britton

BRITAIN'S biggest basketball star was joined by two young 2012 enthusiasts to see the latest preparations for the Olympic and Paralympic Games.

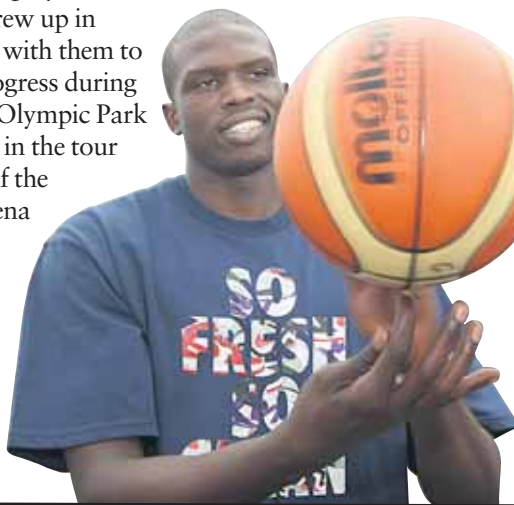

As Hackney 2012 Youth Ambassadors, Gabrielle Boateng and Andre Dias are among 20 13 to 19-year-olds in the borough who have taken on the role of encouraging people to enjoy sports and increasing understanding of the Olympic and Paralympic Games among young people.

Great Britain and Chicago Bulls player Luol Deng, who grew up in London, was with them to check out progress during a tour of the Olympic Park site. Included in the tour was the site of the Handball Arena in Hackney Wick, which will be transformed into a community facility after the Games for a wide range of sports including basketball.

Gabrielle, 19, is a keen basketball player who has played extensively at national level.

“Whoever would have thought being a 2012 Youth Ambassador would give me the chance to meet Luol?”

She said: “Luol’s worked really hard and it makes you feel that anyone can achieve what he has. Seeing him at the Park shows that, just because he’s made it, doesn’t mean he’s forgotten where he came from.”

Andre, 18, from Springfield, started playing basketball two years ago and trains every day.

He said: “When the NBA is on I stay up all night to watch Luol – he’s a great player. Whoever would have thought being a Hackney 2012 Youth Ambassador would give me the chance to meet him? I hope there’s a chance I might compete in 2012 if I train hard.”

The ambassadors are supported by the Council’s 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games Unit and the Council’s Youth Service.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Shopkeeper’s DVD prosecution

The Council’s Trading Standards team found four DVD towers and duplicating equipment at London Starnight Supermarket

THE owner of a Mare Street shop has been prosecuted, after a large number of counterfeit DVDs was seized by the Council’s Trading Standards team.

Hung Trinh, owner of London Starnight Supermarket, pleaded guilty at Thames Magistrates Court, on 29 July, to offences under the Video Recordings Act 1984. When Trading Standards visited the shop, they also found four DVD recording towers with duplicating equipment capable of producing nine DVDs at a time, as well as computer hardware.

The British Board of Film Classification confirmed that none of the DVD titles seized and submitted for examination had been granted a classification certificate.

Trinh was sentenced to eight weeks imprisonment suspended for two years. He was ordered to pay the Council’s full costs of £1,792, and was electronically tagged and subject to a curfew for 60 days. He also forfeited all the DVDs, computer hardware and duplicating equipment.

Cllr Alan Laing, the Council’s Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “This is yet another successful outcome in the Council’s fight to rid the borough of counterfeit and black-market goods.”

CCTV helps catch rapist

A JOINT effort by the Council’s CCTV Service Team and Hackney Police has helped to put a dangerous sex offender behind bars.

Paul Heath, 32, was jailed indefinitely last week having been found guilty of raping a woman in Stoke Newington. Heath was identified after the Council’s CCTV Service reviewed hours of CCTV footage and obtained good facial images of the suspect.

When the images were passed to the police, an officer identified the suspect from memories of previous offences. As a result of this joint effort, Heath was arrested the following day.

Cllr Alan Laing, the Council’s Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “This was an unspeakable crime and I want to commend the tireless work of the CCTV team and Hackney Police in bringing this man to justice.”

NEWS IN BRIEF

Lord of the swing

IT'S not often you get to dance precariously atop London landmarks – but for one hour Hackney resident Scott Pulpit bopped and lindy hopped.

The One and Other art project invited 2,400 performers to become a 'living monument' for an hour each, by occupying Trafalgar Square's Fourth Plinth. Scott and his Hackney swing dance school, Swing Patrol, transformed the area into a 1930s-style jitterbug haven. Around 100 members of the school followed the dance instructor's moves as he demonstrated from the plinth above, with a huge number of spectators watching from the sidelines.

Bid to limit betting shops

HACKNEY has applied to the Government for stronger powers to control the concentration of betting shops. There are more than 60 bookmakers in Hackney, which is over three times the local authority average. Following concern from residents and ward councillors that such a high concentration affects the most vulnerable members of society, the Council has applied under the Sustainable Communities Act. It wants stronger planning and licensing legislation so that it can control the number of bookmakers opening in an area. Of more than 500 local people responding through Hackney's consultation e-panel, 64 per cent support the idea. Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, said: "We have applied for stronger powers because residents cannot understand why we are prevented from meeting their needs in this matter, in line with the Government's place-shaping agenda for councils."

On top of regeneration

DEPUTY Mayor of London, Sir Simon Milton, visited Hackney for a tour of the borough's regeneration projects. Sir Simon, who has responsibility for Planning and Sustainable Development at the Greater London Authority, was shown the Woodberry Down Estate, Dalston town centre and the major Dalston Square redevelopment. Cllr Guy Nicholson, the Council's Cabinet Member for Regeneration and the 2012 Olympic & Paralympic Games, said: "Sir Simon's visit was an ideal opportunity to demonstrate to City Hall that such work in Hackney is making good progress despite the current economic climate."

ONE of the capital's first free outdoor gyms has become a welcomed addition to Hackney's Acton Estate.

The 'alfresco' fitness centre at the E8 estate opened earlier in August and holds a range of equipment – including a ski stepper and handle boat – allowing several visitors to use the area's machines. It is also hoped the gym will build on the community spirit on the estate.

Jeannette White, treasurer of the Tenants and Residents Association on the estate, was involved in getting the gym organised. She said: "There are many families from here who cannot afford to go to an established gym. This takes the pressure away from them as there is now one on their doorstep."

Residents of the estate, which has more than 250 homes, were shown a mock design of the outdoor gymnasium and were impressed with the idea of being able to get fit for free.

Along with the outdoor fitness centre, there is also a large garden on the Acton Estate, where residents also have access to sports equipment such as table tennis bats and footballs.

£50k to bring shops to life

By Emma Britton

AN innovative pilot scheme to bring Hackney's empty shops back into use has been given a boost by £50,000 in Government funding.

The Council's work to support businesses by attracting more visitors has already seen hundreds of people drawn to Hackney Central this summer by film screenings, talks and shows at the Savoy Cafe in Graham Road, E8, which has been empty since the 1990s. The Council is now working with local businesses to explore a range of ways to bring other properties back into use.

Cllr Guy Nicholson, the Council's Cabinet Member for Regeneration and the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, said: "Hackney's town centres are vitally important to our local economy and our residents.

"This money will help us to expand the pilot programme. The Council will continue to support businesses through our town centre partnership forums to maintain thriving high streets."

NINE housing estate kitchens in Hackney have been transformed by a £360,000 facelift.

An official launch took place at Somerford Grove Estate, N16 on 15 August, when residents participating in 'cook and eat' sessions used one of the kitchens for the first time.

The scheme – a partnership between the Council, NHS City and Hackney, Hackney Homes and the Shoreditch Trust – is part of a diverse programme to promote healthy lifestyles and combat obesity.

The launch was attended

These kitchens will play a vital role in delivering services

by Speaker of Hackney Cllr Muttalip Ünlüer, and Cllrs Louisa Thomson and Rita Krishna.

Cllr Nargis Khan, Cabinet Member for Community Services said: "The kitchen here looks excellent and will be a valuable resource for the local community."

"The improvement works and accompanying activities demonstrate how the Council and its partners are working to improve the health of local residents. There is also a pilot scheme to accredit volunteer trainees from estates in physical activity, sports coaching and food production and retail to build local capacity to reduce obesity. These kitchens will play a vital role in delivering these services."

The eight other kitchens are at Bannister, E9, Fellows Court, E2, Kingsmead, E9, Lea View, E5, Nye Bevan, E5, Robin Redman, N4, New Kingshold, E9, and Nightingale, E5.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Words on fire

HACKNEY-born poet John Hegley is among the names heading up Write to Ignite, the annual Hackney Word festival, in September. A programme of events and workshops across the borough focusing on word in its many forms will take place throughout the month, displaying some of the best writers and spoken word performers in the UK.

The event kicks off on 4

September at Stoke Newington Library Gallery with an evening of readings from former Children's laureate Michael Rosen and performances from multidisciplinary artist Malika Booker.

Also at this event local comedy poet Neal Zetter (above), writer of such poems as 'Let Me Date Your Mum' and 'In Love with a Dalek' will be conveying his own words of wisdom – or otherwise.

For info visit: www.writetoignite.co.uk

Have you registered to vote?

RESIDENTS are being urged to fill in and return their annual canvass forms. The forms are being sent to every household in the borough during August. Those who fail to return them by 30 November risk a £1,000 fine.

Annual canvass forms let the Council know who is eligible to vote, but credit reference companies also use the electoral register to check addresses. Signing up for other Council services, including paying Council Tax, does not register residents to vote.

Residents should send completed forms to: Electoral Services, Hackney Town Hall, Mare Street, E8 1EA.

If there are no changes to a household's details, forms can be completed by 24-hour freephone on 0800 1972280; by text message to 80212; or online at:

Electronic police updates

A NEW messaging service that provides news and information about local policing initiatives has been launched. Neighbourhood Link is a free e-mail, text and voice messaging service from the Metropolitan Police. It sends information on behalf of Hackney Safer Neighbourhoods, and Hackney Police as well as police in other boroughs, keeping users updated on police activity that is relevant to them, and offering advice on crime prevention. However, the service cannot be used to contact the Police directly.

Registration is required and messaging is available across London, to keep relevance to where the user works, lives or travels in the capital.

For info visit: www.neighbourhoodlink.met.police.uk; or call: 0300 123 1212 to find out more about your local Hackney Safer Neighbourhoods team.

Work to improve Kings Hall Leisure Centre has begun and will continue for 12 weeks

Work for a better workout

WORK on a new state-of-the-art gym fitness suite at Kings Hall Leisure Centre has begun, and is set to continue for 12 weeks.

The upgrade of the Wellness Fitness Centre includes 100 new Technogym workout stations, new cardio theatre sound and vision package and re-decoration with improvements to lighting, flooring and air conditioning units.

There will also be a complete refurbishment to modernise and enlarge the fitness changing areas with more toilet facilities and over 100 new lockers installed.

During the works, a temporary fitness area is on offer, where as much existing equipment as possible is being made available for people to use.

A SUMMER of activities for older people in Hackney has drawn to a close, as a programme of sports gets under way.

The borough's 15th annual Festival for Older People concluded in a grand finale event of music and dancing on 6 August at King's Hall Leisure Centre, attended by more than 200 people.

Residents were shown swing dance moves before having a go themselves, and there was additional music provided by the Brenner Community Centre Jewish Choir.

Those attending were also able to sign up for this year's New Age Games, a programme of sports for older people starting soon which is set to include swimming, kayaking, cycling, archery and gym activities.

The New Age Games are

Anna Hassan turned Millfield Community School around from being a 'failing' primary into one that is today considered a centre of excellence

By
Nick Rutherford

I'm meant to be retired!" declares Dame Anna Hassan, making her way through a group of children gathered around her as she steps forward to greet me, clearly delighted to be with them.

Until April, she was headteacher at Millfields

Community School, E5, where she was widely praised for turning it around from being a 'failing' primary when she started there 16 years ago to the respected centre of excellence that it is regarded as today.

But a life of retired leisure is not for her. The 63-year-old now works as a consultant offering advice to schools such as Daubney Primary in Clapton, where she has found a 'window' in which to meet Hackney Today. She explains: "I can't be one of these people who says 'oh, I'm retired – I'm going to take the dog for a walk' – although the exercise would probably do me good!"

Being a 'workaholic' is in her blood, she says. Born to Italian Catholic parents in Northern Ireland, her family owned a chain of ice-cream parlours and fish and chip shops, and her 94-year-old mother, Rosa, was working until three years ago – a feat which Anna hopes to repeat.

She admits that she decided on a career in teaching to escape from the prospect of 'an Italian arranged marriage' and came to London to train in the 1960s. It was here that she met her engineer husband, Nevzat 'Ali' Hassan, now 63, a Turkish-Cypriot Muslim.

After the birth of their son, Dogan, in 1972, they moved to Northern Ireland before returning to London seven years later. Anna started working as a teacher again and in 1983 became deputy head and later head at Grasmere Primary, N16, before being invited to become head at Millfields in 1993. When she took charge non-attendance was at 50 per cent – and that was just the teachers.

But by the time she left this year, it had been praised and visited by Prince Charles and former Prime Minister Tony Blair and Anna had been made Dame Commander of the British Empire for services to education.

"I've fought for the children of Hackney because I feel they deserve all the advantages of children anywhere"

What is the secret of her success? She explains: "Honesty, hard work, clarity, having the courage to employ people that I could see had potential and encouraging them to achieve that potential."

She has seen some staff progress from being 'dinner ladies', to classroom assistants to teachers themselves, and more than 40 people she has worked with have become head teachers.

But the core of her success is her undeniable love and respect for children. She says: "Children fascinate me. If things are right for children then everything else falls into place. It's about putting children first. Not mollycoddling – sometimes they need tough love and being firm with them.

"I've never met a parent who doesn't want the best for their children.

"I've fought for the children of Hackney because I feel they deserve all the advantages of children anywhere else."

She adds: "All I've done is my best. I'm sure I've made plenty of mistakes. I'm sure a lot of people think I'm mad, but what I've done is fought for the children."

All your recycling questions answered

Q. I have recently moved to Hackney. I notice that the truck comes at different times each week. When, where and how should I put my recycling boxes?

A: Recycling should be put out each week by 7.30am on your collection day, at the boundary of your property, in a visible location. Boxes should not be placed on the pavement unless this cannot be avoided.

While the Council can guarantee the day of collection will remain the same, the time of the collection may change. So it is important that recycling boxes are out by 7.30am. Collections take place daily during the week until 4.30pm and boxes may be picked up at any time during this period.

In order to help the collection crew return boxes after emptying residents should write their house number on these.

To find out your collection day call: 020 8356 6688.

New lease of life for leftovers

By
Nick Rutherford

FOODIES in Hackney are being called upon to boil, mash, stew and fry as part of a cookery competition launched to banish food waste and give leftovers a new lease of life.

Imaginative cooks are being invited to submit recipe ideas from traditional starters through to exotic desserts that include at least one ingredient which is a 'leftover'.

Leftovers don't have to be meal scraps but can be food found lurking in the back of the fridge, such as pasta from a previous dinner, unused bread or wilting vegetables.

Winners will get a hamper worth £100 and will also see their recipe featured in a cookery book, to be produced later in the year.

The competition forms part of a new Love Food Hate Waste campaign that is running across north London until February 2010.

The aim is to cut the amount of food which currently ends up in landfill sites.

“The amount of food which is thrown away in the UK each year is a serious issue”

Love Food Hate Waste is co-ordinated by North London Waste, the waste disposal authority for Hackney and six other boroughs. Chairman Clyde Loakes said: “The amount of food which is thrown away in the UK each year is a serious issue as it's a

Food lovers are being encouraged to create recipes using leftovers major contributor to the production of greenhouse gases.

“People often feel that this type of issue is too big for them to make a difference but this is an issue on which everyone can have a positive impact and if they do, they will not only see a reduction in the amount they throw away, but they'll save money too.”

The competition closes on 2 October 2009.

Conserving heritage and character

A NEW conservation area has been created in Hackney Road.

After consulting with residents, the Council took action to protect the area's architectural and historic interest. Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Regeneration and the 2012 Olympic & Paralympic Games, said: “Conservation areas are an important part of our borough's heritage, representing a cross section of the best surviving examples of different aspects of development from housing, industrial areas, open spaces and town centres.”

The new area runs from Waterson Street in the south, takes in the area around Haggerston Park, and then runs along Goldsmith's Row, and up to Whiston Road on the northern boundary.

The Council also has a conservation area appraisal – an illustrated document describing the history and significance of the area. The appraisal is used to deal with planning applications in the area.

It includes 19th century maps and early photos to show how the area evolved from fields and farmland in the 18th century. It describes early Georgian houses and shops and the development of retailers and trades, that established themselves in East London.

It also includes the history of Haggerston Park, describing its unique features, such as the popular Hackney City Farm, the long walk, the new tennis courts and sports centre.

Recycling success

By Gracia Douglas

BACK in December 2008 the Council introduced a new recycling service to all estates across the borough – and results show it is performing well.

Residents on estates can now recycle paper, cardboard, glass bottles and jars, tins, cans and plastic bottles, which can be collected at home and dropped into recycling bins. These are mainly located next to refuse stores or at estate entrances.

With people making good use of the new recycling bins, more than 1,700 tonnes of material

“It’s great to see the new estate recycling service working well and people responding to the improved service” have been recycled since December 2008. This is an increase of 400 tonnes, or 23 per cent, compared to the same period in 2006 and 2007.

Cllr Alan Laing, the Council’s Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “Thank you to everyone for their contributions, supporting the Council’s efforts to help make Hackney a cleaner, greener borough.

“We want residents to recycle as much as possible so it’s great to see the new estate recycling service working well and people responding to the improved service.

“Feedback on the new service has generally been positive with people welcoming the option to recycle new materials. But we want even more residents on estates to recycle their waste.”

The Council’s recycling team is currently carrying out a review of the new service, identifying estates where there may be issues, and working to resolve them. It aims to ensure that a wide range of materials can be recycled on estates and make recycling as easy as possible for all residents.

Residents with comments should use the details opposite to call, e-mail or write to the recycling team.

Estate residents have facilities to recycle material including paper and plastic bottles

Recycling on your estate or high rise

New larger recycling bins have been placed on your estate. These bins are located near entrances, exits, or by refuse bins. Some estates have a separate bin for paper recycling. Your new onsite recycling facilities accept the following materials:

What materials can be recycled?

Yes please

- ✓ Paper (separately on most estates)
- ✓ Tins and cans
- ✓ Mixed glass bottles and jars
- ✓ Plastic bottles
- ✓ Cardboard

No thank you

- ✗ Yoghurt pots
- ✗ Tetrapak®
- ✗ Plastic food packaging
- ✗ Household rubbish

Stoke Newington School sixth formers celebrate their grades; Chloe Cupid (bottom) takes a look at her A grades.

Making the grade

THE nerve-wracking wait on results day doesn't get easier. But A-Level students across the borough were taking it in their stride – notwithstanding a few anxious moments as envelopes were opened on 20 August.

"I can't believe it. I'm speechless. I just can't believe I got three As," said former Stoke Newington sixth former Chloe Cupid, who got into her first choice university, St Andrews. "Celebrating? I haven't even thought about celebrating – I don't even know what to do now," she added.

The N16-based sixth form reported an overall improvement on 2008, with 90 per cent attaining pass rates, and 40 per cent an A or B grade.

Hackney Community College (HCC) students also walked away from their college in high spirits. While results can be accessed online, many still came to the college in time-honoured fashion with friends – or to gain some last-minute university placement tips from staff.

“I haven't even thought about celebrating – I don't even know what to do now”

The college reported an eight per cent rise in second year A-C grades on 2008, with strong results in Maths, Economics and Business, Law and Media Studies.

In addition, HCC's overall pass rate and high grades at AS level were up, with particularly good results in Chemistry, Spanish and Art. BTEC students also fared well – 99 per cent achieved their main qualification.

Meanwhile BSix College was pleased at accomplishing a similar result to last year. In 2008 there was a 20 per cent jump in A-C grades on the year before, and reaching the same standard in 2009 “proved it wasn't a fluke”, said Principal Ken Warman.

The college reported that 58 per cent of A-level students received A-C grades. BTEC students were also successful with a 98 per cent pass rate in business. A majority achieved high grades, and 92 per cent gaining merits and distinctions for Science.

Ken noted that a high number of BTEC students are going to top universities, with one about to join the London School of Economics to study Finance.

See Hackney Today on 7 September for an overview of the borough's A-level results, plus GCSEs

Matthew MacDonald received three As in his AS Levels: Biology, Chemistry, Maths and Physics

Dalwar Hossain achieved an A grade for AS Sociology; and a B for A2 Biology. He said: "I was shocked and was expecting a lot lower."

HCC learning support assistant Caroline Wilson got an A in Maths. She said: "In my job I have to work a lot in numeracy. I enjoy problem solving, so I decided to do the full thing."

NEWS IN BRIEF

What to do next?

WHETHER results were better, or not quite as high as expected, there is still time for students to consider their higher education options for September. Clearing can help people without a university place, and those who have decided to change their course or location, by finding the right vacancy for them. Universities are also on call to deal with phone and e-mail enquiries and are expecting questions regarding their campuses and courses. ### The language of business

The Chinese teachers on a trip to Downing Street

A GROUP of teachers from China have sat their banking exams in the capital, with some help from a Hackney Community College (HCC) tutor in their homeland. Eleanor Elliot of HCC spent the summer teaching the group a business-focused English language course. Her students – who will use the course to teach their own pupils in China – then flew to London to take the exam in the City. The venture between HCC and its Chinese counterpart, the Beijing Economic Management School, is part of a London-Beijing project linked to the 2008 and 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

Role reversal

Two teenagers and a police officer switch roles

A STOP-and-search role reversal gave young people a chance to see a situation through the eyes of a police officer. The exercise was part of Hackney North East Youth Forum's One Hackney event, which presented a series of workshops and debates focused on crime prevention and safety. Cat Garrett, the forum's youth participation worker, explained: "The event came about following research by the forum; young people in the area felt safety and crime were issues they wanted to discuss further." Other discussions at the BSix Sixth Form College event included conflict avoidance and knife awareness. There were also music, comedy and theatre performances.

Allowance rates to be effective from 14th May 2009.

* The role of Speaker and Deputy Speaker do not attract a SRA but are covered by a separate legal regime. Schedule 2 of the Local Government Act 1972 provides that a London Borough may pay the Chair of the Council (in Hackney this is the Speaker) such allowances as the Council thinks reasonable for the purpose of enabling him/her to meet the expenses of his/her office. There is a similar power in respect of the Vice Chair (Deputy Speaker).

** The role of directly Elected Mayor does not attract a SRA. All responsibilities of the role are considered core or basic with there being no additional or special duties.

TRAVEL ALLOWANCE

In addition, Elected Members, Independent Members and Statutory Co-opted Members may claim travel expenses for journeys outside Transport for London Zone 6. Statutory Co-opted Members and Independent Members may also claim travel expenses for journeys inside Transport for London Zone 6. Such expenditure can only be claimed where it is necessarily incurred to enable him/her to undertake approved Council duties and must be approved by the Corporate Director of Legal and Democratic Services.

The following table includes:

i. the amount of allowance by post and band in 2008/2009 (inclusive of the uplift as agreed by the Council at its meeting held on 29th April 2009);

ii. the resulting total for each allowance in 2009/2010; and

iii. the relevant total for each member with a Special Responsibility Allowance (SRA) in 2009/2010.

SUBSISTENCE ALLOWANCE

The payment of a subsistence allowance will only be payable to Members for approved Council duties and conferences outside Transport for London Zone 6, subject to the approval of the Corporate Director of Legal and Democratic Services.

CHILDCARE/ DEPENDENTS' CARERS' ALLOWANCE

An allowance shall be paid to those councillors who necessarily incur such expenses for arranging the care of their children or dependents to enable them to undertake approved Council duties, as per Schedule 2 of Hackney Council's Members' Allowances Scheme.

REVIEW

Rankin Live! runs until 18 September at the Old Truman Brewery, Brick Lane, E1

By Beccy Smart

THIS enormous collection shows the best of photographer Rankin's work.

There are tender shots taken as a student; bold statements of the 1990s; and more recent images of compassion, titillation and reflection.

A photographer who is almost as famous as those he takes pictures of, he appears to be driven by a raw desire to show what he thinks, and what he wants others to think. A creative child of the Britpop era, the images experiment with preconceived ideas and often feature nudity.

The first part of the exhibition is The Retrospective, which includes experimental self-portraiture, and iconic images of Kate Moss and Tony Blair. Images of rock royalty sit alongside a slightly startling shot of the Queen, with a sense that Rankin is a levelling off of the way we see famous people. He sees boundaries and reinvents them.

His visual representations have defined people and eras, and he is still defining us through his experiment to capture the 'UK today'. This forms the second part of Rankin Live. One thousand 'ordinary' people are being photographed by him, having responded to his invitation. And seeing his old work alongside his new, while watching him in action, you see and understand the potency of photographic images.

BANDE DESINEE

3 Sep-8 Oct, 7-11pm.

Print works by Jonas Ranson accompanied with live music by Douce Angoisie plus DJs Exit Jesus and Prima Volta. The prints use vivid colours that are representative of veiling and distorting. An attempt at elegant mathematics and geometries that render dynamic, and responsive systems; they are created from both digital conversion and photographic silkscreening. Marie Lloyd bar, Hackney Empire Theatre, 291 Mare St, E8. Info: marielloyd@hackneyempire.co.uk

EXHIBITION HERINGA/VAN KALSBECK

3 Sep-10 Oct, 12-6pm.

A solo exhibition of Dutch artist duo Heringa/Van Kalsbeek. Consisting of a presentation of new sculptures, along with two recently completed large hanging pieces.

The sculptures are created using a mixture of porcelain, artificial resin and feathers. The physical creation process plays a decisive role in the appearance of the sculptures. Vegas Gallery, Oaklands Building, 64-66 Redchurch St, E2.

REVIEW

Little Boots was one of the performers at Field Day

By Louise Hudson, Dalston resident

Field Day, Victoria Park, E9, 1 August

THE weathermen finally got their predictions right and Field Day saw some very un-summery weather indeed.

The rain didn't stop the party, however, and with four tents, plus a stage to choose from, festival lovers were not disappointed.

Luckily, there was time before the heavens broke to enjoy the festival's very own village fete, with lots of silly games and a massive impromptu hay fight between revellers.

Manchester's finest export, Bugged Out, provided the non-stop party tent with an impressive line up, including Audion and Erol Alkan, plus a live appearance from the enigmatic Little Boots.

Some afternoon rave reprieve was found at the Bloggers' Delight tent, with East London trendies getting down and dirty to some rhyme, courtesy of the fabulous Work It girls.

Over at the Eat Your Own Ears stage, Santigold gave a brilliant performance in the rain, handpicking members of the crowd to be her dancers. Although fantastically talented, stage headliners Mogwai were perhaps a little too melancholy to top the preceding party atmosphere and the Mystery Jets proved a popular upbeat and dry alternative.

Fewer people seemed to see the day through this year – unsurprisingly given the rain – but Field Day once again proved itself as a first rate festival. Here's hoping for sunshine next year!

REVIEW

The London Improvisers Orchestra play 'whatever they feel like'

By Louise Hudson

The London Improvisers Orchestra, Cafe Oto, E8, 2 August

SUNDAY evening and just as the sun is beginning to set, Dalston's Café OTO is packed. The expectant audience watch as more and more musicians – 29 to be exact – pile into the venue.

The sound of a myriad of instruments being tuned fills the air; from violins to electric guitars; from double basses to trombones. After a brief introduction, the musicians start playing, well, whatever they feel like. One member, looking slightly like a mad professor, holds fort over a table of homemade instruments, while the group's vocalist generates some beautiful and, at times, downright crazy sounds.

Although initially quite bizarre, it soon becomes clear that these are very talented people indeed, capable of creating interesting and unique pieces, literally on the spot.

Following the 'free improvisation', members of the orchestra take turns in conducting.

This is largely in line with traditional conducting, except for the omission of any predetermined composition.

One conductor takes a more random approach, however, instructing individual musicians to play according to criteria such as whether they are wearing socks. The results are surprisingly wonderful.

If you want to catch this fascinating and brilliant group, then don't miss their next performance at Kings Place, N1 on 14 September, or see them back at Café OTO on 4 October. for info visit:

Hold the front page for me

By Anne-Marie Olusola

THE week-long Young Journalists' Academy summer school, held at Canary Wharf, is just what any young aspiring reporter needs.

The school, funded by the City of London Corporation, provides a solid foundation and is the key that opens doors of many opportunities.

I enjoyed my time at the YJA summer school because the sessions were engaging and informative, touching on everything from investigative reporting to photo journalism and comment writing.

The guest speakers included John Ware, senior television reporter at the

We also visited the News International building, where we had the opportunity to experiment with the equipment.

We recorded radio and TV shows, which gave us an insight into different forms of media.

I graduated from the YJA summer school feeling confident and ready to write. It has increased my desire to be a journalist.

With a broadened understanding of how the media works, I am now more eager than ever to become part of it.

YOUNG carers in Hackney took time out from their responsibilities to explore their creative sides.

People aged from five to 18 took part in jewellery making, sculpture, and paper-craft workshops as part of charity Create's art:space project.

One of the themes of the events held between 6-19 August was nature in the urban area with young carers making giant paper fortune tellers with the help of a professional artist. They also made a large-scale collage of imaginary giant plants taking over Hackney.

The workshops helped participants to develop trust, life skills including communication and teamwork, and self-confidence. The project also helped to create a network through which they can find support from other young carers, and give them time off from their caring duties.

Create co-founder and executive director, Nicky Goulder, said: "Young carers take on a massive amount of responsibility and can become isolated from their peers. This is enabling them to explore their creativity and get to know other carers." The project is a venture between the Council's Young Carers Service and Create, funded by British Land investment company.

Barriers raised for MTV success

WHAT would you do and how far would you be prepared to go if you needed to make money fast?

This dilemma was the subject of a new thought-provoking drama written, directed and performed by the young people of Homerton Youth Forum at Chats Palace, Hackney.

Overcoming Barriers

was developed after the forum came together to look at some of the issues affecting young people in the borough and to come up with an idea to help tackle them.

The hard-hitting drama, produced in partnership with the Youth Opportunities Fund and support from Hackney Youth Service, dealt with the issue of young people and drugs.

It has been shortlisted as one of five finalists in a national competition, 'Good 4 The Hood', in conjunction with MTV and the Home Office. The winner will get help to take their idea forward and appear in their own four-part mini-series on MTV.

Nearly 200 young people and special guests turned out to see the story of John Doe, a young man who needs money fast; witnessing how easily his life spirals out of control and discovering the consequences.

Audiences were able to watch the performance for free and to participate in a debate afterwards.

Overcoming Barriers has been shortlisted for a national award

Ridley Road Market Improvement Scheme Consultation

The Council is investing £1 million to improve Ridley Road Market. Consultation on the proposed changes has already taken place with local residents, businesses and market traders where important information was received as to how the market can be improved. We would now like to provide people in Hackney with an opportunity to comment on the design options for Ridley Road Market.

A public event will be held on Thursday the 10th September 2009 from 3:30pm to 8:30pm at Centerprise Trust, 136 Kingsland High Street, E8 2NS, and you are invited to drop in to the event at any time to discuss with Council staff and the design consultants, how the design ideas are being developed.

The Begum family are among the many Hackney residents benefiting from the Council's Supporting People programme

By
James Willsher

FOR this Hackney family, a helping hand from the Council's Supporting People programme is making all the difference.

Minara Begum, 56, was diagnosed last year with paralysis in both legs, along with other health issues including arthritis and diabetes.

With her husband Eklasmia, 76, also having a heart condition, it was up to their 18-year-old daughter Afia to become a carer and manage the household. It was a lot to take on while also being in full-time education, and when Afia approached City & Hackney Carer's Centre she was referred to housing association Apna Ghar for assistance, one of the Council's Supporting People programme providers.

The Council is committed to helping people stay independent and healthy

The Begums moved to a Hackney Homes property in Haggerston last November.

Renovation work was needed on the house, requiring complex paperwork which Apna Ghar's Amarjit Gujral helped with, as well as assisting in liaising with GPs, district nurses, social services, and applying for the Council's blue badge disabled parking scheme.

Afia said: "If you need anything Amarjit's there, having her support has been very important for us."

One of Mrs Begum's other daughters drives her around, but she also attends weekly training for using an electric wheelchair.

As an unpaid carer, Afia was able to request a carers' assessment with the Council. She is also eligible to receive a number of free Council services, including the carers' card, offering discounts at leisure centres, libraries and local shops and support to access work and training opportunities.

Cllr Nargis Khan, Cabinet Member for Community Services, said: "The Council is committed to helping people stay independent and healthy, and this is an example of a number of positive outcomes for residents delivered by a variety of providers which are part of our Supporting People programme."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Charities hold joint celebration

Outward and HILT volunteers support vulnerable people

TWO local social care charities held a joint celebration to recognise contributions made by volunteers.

Outward and HILT support vulnerable people living in Hackney as well as other parts of north and east London. Volunteers play an important role in supporting people with learning difficulties to live independently in the community – for example, helping them with their shopping, getting fit or going to college.

The event at Shoreditch Town Hall on 6 August recognised the time, energy and enthusiasm of the volunteers and the positive impact they have on people's lives.

Peter Little, Chief Executive of Outward, said that the quality of life of people with learning disabilities was greatly improved by the efforts of volunteers.

Susan Storrar, HILT Chief Executive, highlighted the benefits for volunteers – which includes increasing confidence, developing work skills, better career prospects and learning more about disability. If you are interested in volunteering with HILT, call Emma on 020 7014 7452 or with Outward, call David on 020 8709 9142.

Thirteen proves lucky for some

A new team has been elected to guide Hackney LINK

THE borough's watchdog for health and social care services has elected a new team to lead it through the coming year. Hackney LINK – which stands for Local Involvement Network – represents local residents and service users. It held its first election for the 13 places on its steering group. They will attend meetings, forums and partnerships to contribute the views and activities of the LINK, and report back relevant information.

Esther Norman, LINK Support and Development Manager, said: "This shows Hackney LINK making real progress in giving people a voice in their local care services."

Robot speeds up dispensing

HOMERTON Hospital has introduced a new robotic dispensing system to speed up the sorting of drugs in its pharmacy.

It works by scanning and recognising the barcodes of drug packages and is able to store and retrieve medicines efficiently, accurately and speedily.

It has its own storage area for thousands of different tablets and medicines, an automatic loading system and a high-speed delivery facility, which goes direct to the pharmacists.

Senior pharmacist, Iola Williams, said: "This robot has transformed the way we dispense our drugs at the hospital. It speeds up the dispensing process and reduces the risk of human error."

Stoke Newington (above in 1807) was home to anti-slavery campaigners including (clockwise from the top) Thomas Day, John Aitkin, Samuel Hoare and William Allen. From top left: Newington Green Meeting House, Allen's and Aitkin's homes; and Day's 1773 poem The Dying Negro

Roots of revolution

By Sally England
Local Studies Librarian

A TREE has been planted on Stoke Newington Common to commemorate the work of those who campaigned for the abolition of slavery, with a plaque to mark its importance.

The contribution made by local people to ensure the passing of the 1807 Abolition of Slavery Act cannot be underestimated. Supporters came from all walks of life – from MPs and church leaders, to ordinary people who made their own protest by boycotting goods produced through slave labour. All had an important role to play, and some of the most influential lived in Stoke Newington.

The writings of poet Thomas Day (1748-1789) were extremely influential in raising public awareness of the inhumanity of slavery. His incredibly successful poem The Dying Negro was the earliest direct literary attack on the slave trade.

In 1783, businessman William Allen and fellow Stoke Newington residents Samuel Hoare and Joseph Woods signed the first petition against the trade. Four years later Allen was a founder member of the Society for the Abolition of the Slave Trade.

James Stephen (1758-1832) was the mastermind whose political strategy ensured William Wilberforce's Bill for the abolition of slavery could be passed in Parliament after being defeated 11 times between 1789 and 1805.

John Aikin edited a monthly paper, The Athenaeum, between 1807 and 1809 which reported positively on the introduction and enforcement of the Abolition Act and included supportive poetry by authors including his sister Anna Lætitia. Like many of his fellow-abolitionists, Aikin gave up sugar because it was produced through the labour of slaves.

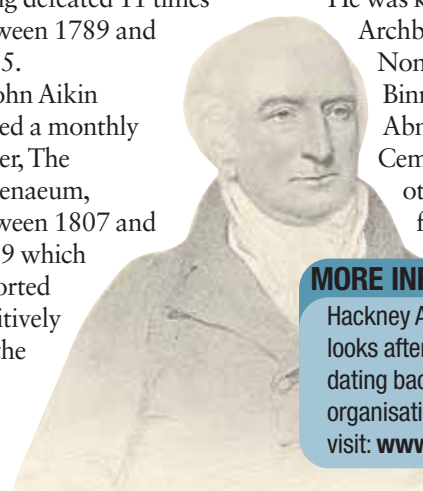

The Reverend Thomas Binney was another active member of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society.

He was known as the Archbishop of Nonconformity. Binney is buried in Abney Park Cemetery alongside other prominent figures who continued the fight to end slavery. These include Reverend Thomas Burchell (1799-1846) and Reverend Samuel Oughton (1803-81), Baptist missionaries who worked for emancipation in Jamaica, and Reverend Dr. Christopher Newman Hall (1816-1902), who supported emancipation in the United States.

Despite the passing of the 1807 Act, slavery continued – it was only the trade that had been banned. But Stoke Newington's abolitionists didn't give up, making valuable contributions towards achieving the 1833 Act, which made slavery illegal throughout the British Empire.

The eyes have it...

A screen grab from the new national advertising campaign that is taking on drug-driving

By
Gabriel Harriss

THE first national TV advertising campaign to tackle drug-driving has been launched.

It follows new research which shows that one in 10 young male drivers admit to getting behind the wheel after taking illegal drugs.

It highlights that the police can, and will, detect drug drivers – and that anyone convicted will face the same tough penalties as a drink-driver.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “In Hackney we fully support the efforts of this campaign to rid our streets of people driving under the influence of illegal drugs.

“This sort of irresponsibility is unacceptable and the message is clear: If you are caught drug-driving, you will face the most severe punishment.”

Transport for London is working with the Department for Transport in London as part of a regional approach.

Police can spot the signs that someone is driving under the influence of drugs and – as the new campaign highlights – once a driver has been stopped their eyes will give them away because of the obvious and involuntary effects drugs have on the body.

“The message is clear: if you are caught drug-driving you will face the most severe punishment”

Anyone convicted of driving while unfit through drugs will face a minimum 12 months driving ban, a criminal record and a large fine.

Bright new LED idea for traffic

ENERGY-saving LEDs are set to be installed in 3,500 traffic lights at around 300 junctions in the capital.

Light Emitting Diode technology can reduce electricity consumption and the associated CO<sub>2</sub> emissions that cause climate change by 60 per cent. The new LED-fitted junctions will save 600 tonnes of these emissions a year and around £200,000 in energy costs.

The LEDs will replace the existing bulbs at 3,500 traffic signal heads, each of which contain at least three bulbs.

TfL is collecting information from companies interested in supplying and fitting these new lights. Locations will be decided next year.

Meanwhile, Hackney currently has 58 LED street lighting units in the borough, including what is believed to be, in Shoreditch Park, the largest single site trial in London. By the end of the year this will have risen to 100.

Cllr Alan Laing, the Council's Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “Hackney is leading the way on introducing more sustainable lighting as we know residents want us to play our part in reducing our contribution to global warming.

“We welcome the drive to develop robust LED solutions.”

NEWS IN BRIEF

East London Line goes ‘live’

PEOPLE living along the length of the East London Line extension have been warned that the new £1bn railway should now be regarded as live at all times.

Transport for London engineers are currently testing sections of the track by turning on 750 volts of DC current.

Howard Smith, Chief Operating Officer for TfL London Rail, said: “Although the ELL is a secure area, all members of the public need to be aware that it is changing from a construction site to an operational railway.

“Once the electricity testing is completed and the last rail laid then test trains will start running later this year so that the new railway can open to the public on schedule in June 2010.”

The current will be turned on along 5.5 miles (9kms) of track from Dalston Junction south to New Cross Gate. A notice has also been sent out to 35,000 residents along the line.

Make sure you can Zip about

WITH the new school term almost upon them, parents are being reminded to check that their children are signed up to Transport for London's Zip Oyster card scheme.

This photocard gives eligible 11-15 year-olds and 16-18 year-olds free travel on buses and trams in the capital.

Application forms are available from post offices within London. It may take up to two weeks to process each application. Proof of application will not be accepted by bus drivers as a valid ticket for travel.

For more details, visit: www.tfl.gov.uk

Dalston diversion update

RESIDENTS travelling through Dalston could experience delays as road narrowing works begin on a short section of Kingsland High Street near Dalston Junction from 1 September.

The work by TfL, which will take about a year, will initially see part of the southbound bus lane (towards Liverpool Street) become a pedestrian footpath, which is expected to be in place until just before Christmas. Following works will see traffic lanes narrowed and pedestrian footpaths diverted.

Two-way traffic and pedestrian footpaths on both sides of the street are due to remain throughout the works, which are being carried out to enable East London line services of eight trains per hour to connect Dalston Junction with Canonbury and Highbury & Islington in 2011.

The diversion of westbound traffic (towards Islington) by TfL on Dalston Lane is expected to end by late October. Find out more at: www.tfl.gov.uk or call: 020 7222 1234.

Hackney is now recognised as the most improved Council in the UK, serving one of the most diverse populations. Regeneration is improving housing, public services and transport links. Crime is falling. Exam results are up. The Olympics are coming...

Job vacancies

Neighbourhoods & Regeneration

Assistant Environmental Enforcement Officer

£25,263-£26,724

Ref: NBR0008

Closing date: 7 September

You will help bring knowledge of the technical aspects, legislative controls and guidance relating to at least one environmental area.

You will improve environmental conditions by assisting in the enforcement of the full range of environmental crime legislation, while undertaking community engagement work and responding to customer enquiries.

With excellent communication skills, you'll also be able to prepare accurate and well presented reports and policy documents. You will be keen to work on your own initiative and be willing to spend a great deal of time outdoors.

Unit Accountant

£32,211-£40,104

Ref: NBR0004

Closing date: 8 September

The successful candidate will help ensure that the Council continues to manage its regeneration and planning resources effectively. The role will include supporting the service in delivering its business within budget and providing financial advice and training.

You will support senior colleagues to deliver value for money services through budgetary control and excellent financial administration. A clear understanding of local government finance is essential; you should be expert in managing significant budgets and experienced in using the relevant IT.

You will support a number of teams and take responsibility for budgetary and financial control for a number of services. This role demands a professional qualified to AAT or part CCAB standard – or with equivalent local authority experience.

Enforcement Compliance Manager

£34,707-£37,476

Ref: NBR0002

Closing date: 7 September

Fixed term for 16 months

You will work closely with the community safety service and other services to ensure that action taken is proportionate and consistent with the legislative framework and Council policy.

You will have a proven track record in the management of people and projects, and the preparation of committee or corporate reports.

You will have an interest in local environmental quality, but experience in this field is not necessary. You will also have the ability to motivate and empower staff to achieve targets. You will have the ability to analyse substantial amounts of data and use it to inform improvements in service delivery.

Regeneration Officer

£37,476-£40,104

Ref: NBR0000

Closing date: 28 August

You will ensure the Council and our partners make effective use of funding opportunities to deliver economic development programmes. This will include helping people excluded from the labour market to become economically active, and encouraging an enterprise and entrepreneur culture. You will help identify and make the most of social regeneration opportunities from physical regeneration projects. You'll be a strong partnership worker with the ability to manage and direct projects from start to finish. You should have a solid grounding in current legislation and issues in this field, especially regeneration in multi-cultural inner-city areas. You will lead on identifying and realising opportunities to attract funding for social regeneration. For an informal discussion call Chris Dransfield on: 020 8356 7746.

Town Centres Coordinator

£37,476-£40,104

Ref: NRB0002

Closing date: 28 August

In this role you will define Hackney's vision for all the borough's town centres. You will coordinate policy response to issues from parking to security, and work to maximise the community rewards of physical renewal.

You should be a highly persuasive communicator with a sound understanding of local authority improvement work in a multi-cultural inner-city area. Proven abilities in project management and service delivery are essential.

You will act as our key point of contact with a range of interests to improve services. The town centre forums will be a key tool as you identify and seize opportunities for the funding of improvement and marketing initiatives.

Graduate calibre is desirable, and a relevant background in regeneration or town planning. For an informal discussion please contact Chris Dransfield on 020 8356 7746.

Children & Young People's Service

Social Worker

£30,045-£37,476

Ref: CYP/SW/M07424

Closing date: 6 September

We are recruiting skilled social workers, who are committed to an evidence-based approach and are excited about the impact we can have with children and families. Social workers need good support from the organisation they work for, freedom to practise at a high level and a range of intellectual abilities and emotional resilience to bring to the task. In short, social workers need to be highly professional. We understand the importance of offering development opportunities and appropriate support and remuneration and we plan to equip people with the skills needed to be excellent social workers. For info call Liz McCaffry on 020 8356 3798.

Newly Qualified Social Worker

£27,669-£29,277

Ref: CYP0002

Closing date: 6 September

We have a range of different opportunities to enhance your learning and development including an excellent training programme delivered by leading academic institutions and an accessible, internal transfer programme, so you can gain experience within different areas of the service.

We need people with passion and resilience, who are determined to have a positive impact on the lives of the families we work with – we are committed to finding creative solutions and are looking for like-minded people to join us. We have full-time and part-time opportunities available.

For info call Liz McCaffry on 020 8356 3798.

Youth Support Worker - Substance Misuse

£32,211-£34,707

Ref: CYP/08965

Closing date: 31 August

You'll be the lead professional for young people whose drug and alcohol use is impacting on their lives. You will need a track record of engaging with a diverse range of young people in community and detached settings, with a sound knowledge and understanding of issues affecting young people at risk, including barriers to education, employment and training.

Your experience of effective engagement techniques with young people who have alcohol and substance misuse issues is key to this role. You will be educated to degree level and hold a professional qualification in youth, community work or substance misuse or related field at NVQ level 4. You must be able to demonstrate experience and the ability to communicate effectively with young people and their families, as well as other agencies. The role requires energetic, motivated staff who will work flexibly late afternoons, evenings and weekends where necessary.

Community Services

PA to Assistant Director (x 4)

£30,045-£31,620

Ref: CMS0008

Closing date: 3 September

You will provide comprehensive and confidential secretarial and administrative service to support the Assistant Director.

The ability to work closely with the Assistant Director will be a must and you will be effective in developing relationships with a wide range of internal and external partners.

You will also have typing, including audio, to a minimum 70 words per minute and you will be able to manage a varied workload.

You will be responsible for the effective management, smooth running and development of the Assistant Director's personal office.

You will have experience of working as a Personal Assistant at Assistant Director/Executive level.

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Water House – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch. Head Chef Ben Spice tells us about a vegetable dish that is getting him excited. "Marrow is such an underrated vegetable – it has fantastic texture. It pairs well with so many different flavours without getting lost. Meat and fish are nothing without vegetable dishes but vegetables can stand up as great dishes on their own – and this dish is a superb example of that." Visitors can currently enjoy stuffed marrow with tempura battered courgette flowers at the Water House Restaurant.

marrow

Serves 4

Preparation time
30 minsCooking
20 minsIngredients

- 1 large marrow
- ½ cup basmati rice
- 1 red, 1 yellow, 1 green pepper deseeded and diced
- 1 onion diced
- 4-6 cloves garlic, crushed and diced
- 2 sprigs picked thyme
- 1-2 chillis, deseeded and diced
- Handful parsley
- Handful mushrooms, diced
- 2 tomatoes, diced
- Black olives, roughly chopped
- Handful each of toasted pine nuts and pumpkin seeds
- 400g ricotta

Method

- In a pan brown mushrooms in olive oil (or a nut oil such as walnut if you prefer)
- Add onions, garlic and cook until onions are lightly coloured. Add diced peppers, thyme and chilli
- Add rice and sweat for a couple of minutes before adding double the water required to cover the rice. Bring to the boil and simmer until rice is cooked through and has absorbed the liquid.
- Remove from heat. Add toasted nuts and seeds, chopped parsley and olives
- Cut marrow in half and scoop out soft centre. Fill the hole with rice and vegetable mixture
- Mix ricotta with a little nutmeg and pepper. Cover the filled marrow with ricotta
- Bake in a hot oven on a baking tray at 160-180C until marrow is tender
- Remove from oven, cut each side of marrow into two portions and serve.

Victoria views

RESIDENTS' views are being sought on plans for the multi-million pound refurbishment of Victoria Park.

The park is in Tower Hamlets, but is bordered on its northern boundary by Hackney. It is one of London's most important historic parks.

Tower Hamlets Council has received funding from the Heritage Lottery Fund allowing it to restore Victoria Park to an iconic landmark urban park; revealing its rich heritage, and creating an exciting recreation and leisure experience.

Hackney residents can take part in the park's improvement survey and have their say.

Drop in sessions will take place soon – watch this space for details. Residents can complete the online questionnaire at:

The Mayor & Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2006.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They all hold advice surgeries where you can meet your local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, they can often point you in the right direction and tell you who you need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

Hackney's wards in alphabetical order

1. Brownswood
2. Cazenove
3. Chatham
4. Clissold
5. Dalston
6. De Beauvoir
7. Hackney Central
8. Hackney Downs
9. Haggerston

12. Leabridge
13. Lordship
14. New River
15. Queensbridge
16. Springfield
17. Stoke Newington Central
18. Victoria
19. Wick

The Mayor

Jules Pipe

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of the Council who is elected annually from the borough's 57 councillors. Cllr Muttalip Unluer is the current Speaker.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION DURING JULY & AUGUST

Some councillors do not hold surgeries during the school summer holidays. To check whether your councillor is holding a surgery during this period call: 020 8356 3373; or visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/surgeries

Hackney Council is committed to improving services and increasing opportunities for all, and making a safer, cleaner, greener borough. Here we focus on a service that helps to make this possible:

MAKING A DIFFERENCE

Domestic Violence Partnership Manager

The Domestic Violence Partnership Manager has responsibility for the Hate Crime team. "We have eight people in the team including four caseworkers – one of whom is a qualified counsellor. The staff team are very passionate about issues of social justice and making a difference to the lives of those who are disadvantaged or disfranchised."

Not only do they provide advice, advocacy and counselling to victims of Hate Crime, they work with the Council's Community Safety Team and the police officer for LGBT issues in the borough. Raising awareness of this issue is important and is done through events such as LGBT History Month. A caseworker in the team says: "To see the change in a person from when they first access our service –they become visibly stronger when the threat of violence or abuse has been dealt with. That is when I realise why I work in this area –making a difference by helping people find solutions which improve the quality of their lives by living free from violence or the threat of violence." The team runs surgeries in five Neighbourhood Offices. Details are available from the team on: 0800 056 0905.

Dylan Sharpe

THE Council is committed to tackling all crime in Hackney that is motivated by hate and prejudice.

The Domestic Violence and Hate Crime Team (DVHCT) works closely with Hackney Police to provide a service to people who have been verbally abused, bullied, harassed or assaulted because they are lesbian, gay or bisexual (LGBT), or transgender, transvestite or intersex.

Ignorance, prejudice or fear is usually the motivation for someone carrying out homophobic and transphobic crimes. Such crimes can have a serious impact upon the victim and their quality of life.

The DVHCT is careful to ensure it works with victims of hate crime in a non-judgemental, culturally sensitive way that is appropriate to the needs of any person who has experienced homophobic or transphobic crime.

If you feel uncomfortable about reporting incidents of hate crime at a police station, you can use a third-party form available from the Victim Support organisation.

The DVHCT work with the police to help people who have been the victim of homophobic or transphobic crimes (posed by model)
